Christmas in literature

Charles Dickens has probably had more influence on the way that the British celebrate Christmas today than any single individual in human history except one.

At the beginning of the Victorian period the celebration of Christmas was decline. The industrial Revolution, in full swing in Dickens' time, allowed workers little time for the celebration of Christmas.

The romantic revival of Christmas traditions that occurred in Victorian times had other contributors: Prince Albert brought the German custom of decorating the Christmas tree of England. The singing of Christmas carols began to thrive again, and the first Christmas card appeared in the 1840s, but it was the Christmas stories of Dickens, particularly his 1843 masterpiece A Christmas Carol, that rekindled the joy of Christmas in Britain and America. Today, after 169 years, A Christmas Carol gets to the heart and soul of the holidays.

Dickens describes the holidays as «a good time: a kind, forgiving, charitable, pleasant time: the only time I know of in the long calendar of the year, when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut-up hearts freely, and to think of other people below them as if they really were fellow passengers to the grave, and not another race of creatures bound on their journeys.» This is what Dickens described for the rest of his life as the «Carol Philosophy».

Dickens' name had become so synonymous with Christmas that on hearing of his death in 1870 a little *costermonger's girl in London asked, «Mr Dickens dead? Then will Father Christmas die too?»

*costermonger – a person who sells fruit and vegetables from a cart in the street, especially in London.

Why do people love Christmas?

*Is it the sparkle on the tree,
The green wreath on the door;
The present tied with ribbon red,
Or is it something more?
The cheery greeting when we meet
A friend along our way,
The crunch of snow beneath our feet,
The children in their play?
We ask ourselves,
What is it?
But in the end we know
It's our love for one another
That makes Christmas spirit glow.*

The Birth of Jesus

The main part of the Christmas Story is the birth of Jesus. But why was Jesus born in such unusual surroundings?

In those days Caesar Augustus issued a decree that a census should be taken of the entire Roman world. And everyone went to his own town to register.

So Joseph also went up from the town of Nazareth in Galilee to Judea, to Bethlehem. He went there to register with Mary, who was pledged to be married to him and was expecting a child. While they were there, the time came for the baby to be born, and she gave birth to her firstborn, a son. She wrapped him in cloths and placed him in manger.

As many people would have traveled to Bethlehem for the census, all the houses, or certainly upper levels were full. So Joseph and Mary had to sleep with the animals, either in a very crowded and smelly lower level of a house or out in a stable, cave or even a covered market stall that sold animals.

And as no proper crib was available, the new baby boy was placed in a manger, or feeding trough.

This must have been an amazing scene, but was exactly how the angels had described things to the shepherds up on the hills surrounding Bethlehem!
